This short paragraph demonstrates the usefulness of the packages showhyphenation and check-lua-hyphens. The first automatically marks all hyphenation points found by the engine with a small triangular mark. The second package writes out all hyphenations that happened in the document into a file with the extension .uhy. You can then examine that file to find any issues with the hyphenation and correct them as necessary.